In loving remembrance of Curtis R. Ferguson, who departed this life one year ago, Aug. 6, 1961
August brings sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest;
Never to be forgotten
By the ones who loved him best.
Why some things have to happen
He failed to understand.
But God in his wisdom,
Has it all planned.
No heart aches, no sorrows, no tears
On, that happy golden shore.
We'll meet you up there someday
Where loved ones part no more.
Sadly missed by his

County Agent's News

Protecting home cured meat during warm months can be a problem unless certain precautions are taken, says W. E. Backus, meats specialist at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Several insect pests may damage stored meats, The most common is the ham or cheese skipper, which gets its name from the jumping habits of the larvae. The larder beetle may also cause severe damage.

The best way to control cured meat pests is to take proper measures to prevent infestation, syas Backus. The storage area or smokehouse should be thoroughly scrubbed before any meat is stored. This removes grease and scraps of meat that may lodge in cracks in the floor, walls, or on shelves. Also, the breeding places of the insects that harm home cured meats.

Spray the smokehouse before meat is brought in. Use a spray made using 3 ounces of a 25 percent lindane wettable powder to each gallon of water, or 1 pound of 50 percent DDT or methoxychlor wettable powder to each 2½ gallons of water, These materials should not come in contract with the meat.

The smokehouse should be well ventilated to control slimy molds which will grow in the presence of moisture, and may cause off-flavors in cured meats. Cover openings in the smokehouse with 30 mesh or finer screen to prevent the entry of most insects.

The simplest method of preparing cured meat for storage is to wrap the meat in oil resistant paper, Then place it in a regular paper bag and double tie the end. This should be put in a second heavy paper bag with matted paper in the bottom to absorb drip. (A used flour or sugar sack will work well for the second bag.) Hang the meat individually to allow for good air circulation.

In spite of the best precautions, at times cured meat does become infested. When this happens remove the infested meat from storage and trim out affected parts. Cut deep enough to remove any larvae that have penetrated along a seam of fat or around a bone, says Backus. The unaffected portion is safe to eat, It should be used promptly, however.

Put this meat under refrigeration, or protect the exposed surface from becoming rancid by greasing with salad oil or melted fat. This will also delay the formation of mold and drying.

Pest of cured meat may also be controlled by fumigation, this works well for larger storage areas that are tightly constructed, says Backus. The meat should not be removed from storage during fumigation.

These 4-H'ers were members of Mrs. Hesson's 7th Grade In-School Club during 1961-62. The Congress is an annual event attended by boys and girls who do outstanding work in the 4-H Electric Program in their counties.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR FARMERS

Appomattox County farmerh who seeded sudangrass or pearl millet in the spring are now reaping the benefits of their foresight.

Jim Smith, county agricultural agent, says the supplementary pasture crops are giving a real boost to summertime livestock needs in Appomatox county.

Smith says there are some tricks of the trade when it come to getting the top benefits from grazing sudan or pearl millet.

Graze them rotationally. Let sudangrass reach a height of 18 inches or more before grazing. Graze down to a height of six to eight inches, then remove the animals and let the grass recover to the 18-inch height before grazing again, Graze pearl millet in the same manner, However, it can be grazed at a lower height without danger to the animals Because it contains no prussic acid, The 18-inch height is the minimum for high yields of both crops.

If you let the grass or millet grow taller than 18 inches before grazing, you can expect higher yields. But be sure to begin grazing before the crops become too coarse, usually not over a height of 24 to 30 inches. If either sudan or millet approaches or reaches maturity before grazing or harvesting, recovery will be seriously retarded.

Strip grazing or restricting the area to be grazed to that needed for two or three days grazing will result in less waste by trampling. Both sudan and pearl millet are excellent for "zero grazing" - harvesting daily and hauling green chopped forage to animals.

If you have more forage than you need for grazing harvest it for silage or hay. For highest quality forage, cut as the first heads appear.

$3,070,000 Spent Locally For Car Operation

NEW YORK, Aug, 13 — Vacation expenditures, for residents of Appomattox County traveling by automobile, are running higher this year than they did last.

The reason for it? An increase in the cost of overnight accomodations, an increase in tolls and a hike in gasoline and other taxes in some areas.

The sad news comes from the Commerce Clearing House and from the Automobile Club of New York.

The finding is that the average couple, driving 300 miles a day, must figure on a daily budget of $31 for necessary spending. That is $2 more than was needed last summer.

It breaks down to $10.50 for meal, and snacks, $11 for overnight lodgings, $7 for car operation and $2.50 for tolls and miscellaneous needs.

Also being encountered, in many states, are higher taxes on gasoline cigarettes and on purchases in general, which are subject to sales taxes in 37 states.

A "vacation tax map," issued by the Commerce Clearing House, shows gas taxes ranging from 5 cents a gallon to 8 cents.

Cigarette taxes, collected in all but three states, begin at 2 cents a pack and reach a high of 8 cents.

As for sales taxes, they go from a low of 2 percent to a top of 4 percent.

These are state taxes. In addition, there are the usual Federal taxes and, sometimes, overlapping local levies.

In the State of Virginia, vacationers are paying 7 cents on gasoline, nothing in sales taxes and 3 cents on cigarettes.

Of much more importance to the Appomattox Clunty car owner than these trip expenditures, is the bigger question of how much it is costing him per year to own and operate his car.

According to the American Automobile Association, the cost was a little higher in the past year than in 1960.

For tre driver of a standard-size car in the moderate price group, where usage was at the average rate of 10,000 miles a year, it amounted to nearly $1,264.

The biggest item was depreciation, followed by insurance, fuel, maintenance and license fees.

The total in the county, for the 2,550 passenger cars under registration last January, came to $3,070,000

Filling stations in Appomattox County had a good year, taking in $43,000 of this amount.
